Election of U. S Senators—The Senate Bill.

A recent telegram informs us that the Senate have passed a bill to regulate the election of United States Senators. The main features of the bill, as we read the dispatch, are, that on the second Tuesday of the session of the assembly preceding the expiration of a Senatorial term, there shall be an election for Senator. The proceeding is to commence by a separate vote of each House on that day. On the day following the members of both Houses meet together and compare results If no one has received a concurrent majority of both Houses, or if for any reason either House has failed or refused to act in the premises, the members thus assembled, as a College of Electors, are then to proceed and vote for a Senator, the person having a majority of the votes then given to be Senator The votes of the members are to be given viva voce. This provision Senator Fessenden attempted to have stricken out, but the motion failed. We are thankful that it did Whatever may be said for or against secret or open voting at the polls, there can be no question but that secret voting in a legislative assembly is wrong in principle and tends directly to dishonesty and corruption. A representative votes not for himself, but for his constituents An honest man will not desire to conceal his action from those to whom he is responsible, and a dishonest one should not have the opportunity to do so. We are not among the number who deem it best to subject a member of the Assembly to control or intimidation from outside pressure, or the spasms of hasty and jejune public opinion But publicity in the conduct of public affairs is wholesome in itself, and tends always to keep the representative aloof from corrupt and sinister influences which work best in secret.

The authority for this enactment by Congress is found in section 4 of Article 1 of the Constitution It reads "The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof, but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the place of choosing Senators" By virtue of this provision, Congress has complete control and authority over the time and manner of holding elections for Senators This is as it ought to be, and the history of the country shows that long since there was an imperative necessity that Congress should have exercised this power. The legislatures of the States have generally failed to make any efficient regulation on the subject. The minority for the time being, was without the power to do so, and the majority have neglected or declined to do so, because they did not wish to impose any restraint upon themselves Congress hitherto refrained from exercising this power in obedience to the dictates of the States Rights school—a school which not only sought to withhold power from the National Government, but to withdraw that already granted, or prevent the exercise of it.

For the past fifteen years, legislative assemblies, instead of "holding an election for Senators," as the Constitution contemplated, have too often conducted themselves in such a manner as to show that their object was not to elect a Senator, because it was apparent that a particular faction could not control the election. A minority would prevent an election by refusing to go into joint convention, or by leaving the House and preventing a quorum Such instances have occurred lately in New Jersey, and in Oregon in 1859. The majority, justly indignant at being baulked of their right by a factious and lawless minority, have proceeded to elect a Senator, irrespective of the forms and usages of legislative proceedings. Such was the case of Bright and Fitch from Indiana, occurring some years since. A friendly majority in the Senate allowed them to hold their seats, by preventing an inquiry into the legality of their election The plan proposed by the Senate bill will reduce the functions of the Assembly to what the Constitution contemplated—"holding an election for Senator"—and prevent the proceeding from being perverted into a parliamentary, strategic contest to prevent an election for Senator.

The first important matter of an election is to have it fixed for a certain day. This the bill does, by naming the second Tuesday of the session preceding the expiration of the term of the incumbent. This cuts up by the roots all schemes to bring on an election prematurely, as in the Broderick case in this State, or to stave it off temporarily, for the purpose of manipulating members or indefinitely to prevent the election of a particular person The vote by separate houses, if it results in an election, ends the struggle, but whether the taking of such a vote is subject to the parliamentary rules, which govern the House in ordinary legislative proceedings, is not plain from the dispatch. If it is, then this part of the proceeding is liable to be prevented by the tactics of an unscrupulous and hostile minority. But, be this as it may, it is not very material. On the day following the members of the two Houses meet together, and if no election has taken place by the concurrent votes of the two Houses, the members present proceed to vote for Senator, and the person having a majority of the votes given is elected

The proceeding on the second day is not by the Houses as such, but by the individual members, as Senatorial Electors Each member goes to the place of voting as appointed by law, and no separate or joint action of the Houses is necessary to authorize his action or competent to prevent it. Those who remain away or refuse to vote are not counted. A majority of those present and voting elect the Senator The preliminary voting in each House, if it does not result in an election, will be useful in case of many candidates, in enabling the members to ascertain the probable strength of each, and thereby be better advised on the final vote the next day But the prime and wholesome feature of the regulation, is the constituting the members of the assembly a college of electors on the second day, and authorizing a majority of those present and voting to elect.

We believe that the essential feature of this plan was first suggested in the columns of the Bulletin, by our Oregon correspondent. In his letter of the 25th of February, 1863, the scheme is marked out and commended, and in a subsequent letter of December 4th of the same year, the matter is discussed at length. An extract from the latter will suffice to show this

"There is one way to accomplish the desired result, and that is to strip the election of Senators of all the legislative entanglement pertaining to parliamentary proceedings and make it an election simply, and the individual members of the Assembly a college of electors First, fix the election day, say at meridian of the second Monday of the session entitled to elect a Senator. At that time the members of both Houses of the Assembly, without any joint or separate action of either, but simply as individual electors, shall meet in the hall of the House of Representatives, and vote for Senator, the person having a plurality of all the votes cast to be elected * * 'The object in view is to make the proceeding similar to an ordinary election, the members being electors * * This plan is effective, and will work, while two or more members can be got together to vote Factious minorities have no power over it * * This plan first occurred to the writer during the sitting of the Oregon Constitutional Convention in 1857"

One feature of our correspondent's plan we think better than the Senate bill, and that is, that a plurality shall be sufficient to elect, rather than a majority. The majority rule has been found impracticable in popular elections and generally abolished In the election of Senator, it will often enable many small men to prevent the election of the foremost and best candidate, and eventually succeed in electing one of themselves, or some other complaisant and time-serving nobody, whom each expects to control and use for his own selfish ends.

But waiving this objection, the Senate bill is a wise and much needed measure, and we hope it will pass the House before adjournment. We like it also because it involves the exercise by the National Government of its rightful and necessary power—a power which, for the purpose of placating and propitiating the pestilent State Rights heresy, has been kept in abeyance from the formation of the Government until now. Congress owes it to the country, to provide that the National Government shall not be dependent on the caprice or selfishness of factions in the State Assemblies for the election of United States Senators, and the perpetuation of the most important body in its own organization The framers of the Constitution, with prophetic vision saw this danger, and gave power to Congress to provide against it. It only remains to apply the remedy and all will be well.—Bulletin

"It now remains to be seen whether the Copperheads will fall in with this movement. Unless they shall, the proposed nomination will hardly outlive its birth If Copperheads, rebels, and "bread and butter" Republicans unite with this movement, Andrew Johnson will get very respectably out voted in every loyal State, and will carry every disloyal one The entire movement has but one obstacle to contend against, and that is the absolute impossibility of its success. Like attempts to galvanize a dead body, it may produce violent contortions and even ugly kicks, but the dead thing must remain as dead as ever The Republican party will be pretty likely to place in nomination Lieut. Gen. Grant, on a sound loyal platform, and Andrew Johnson, who boasts that he often forgets that he is President, will then, in the same absence of mind, forget that he is a candidate for the Presidency.

THE PRESIDENT.—A correspondent, writing from Washington lately, says.

Once or twice Johnson has responded to Copperhead serenaders, but through a wholesome fear of renewed ridicule, he refrained from making any extended speeches He maintains a sullen silence and seems to regard Congress as the great nightmare of his political couch It is probably fortunate for the good fame of the country that he keeps silent and so much in private. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 8, 1866

The Wool Interests of the United States.

Just before the late adjournment of Congress, a new tariff bill was passed by both Houses. It was expected that the act would be framed so as to require the payment of larger duties on imported wools but as telegraphic dispatches inform us, such was not the case. The intelligence which has reached us seems to indicate that in the hurry of legislation just prior to adjournment, this important matter was inadvertently omitted by Congress. Certainly the general belief throughout the country was that whenever the old law should be revised the tariff on foreign wool would be increased.

But the law being unchanged in this respect, stands as it has stood since February, 1864. By the tariff of that year all wool of the value of 12 cents per pound and under, pays a duty of 3 cents per pound, exceeding 12 cents and not 24 cents per pound 6 cents per pound, exceeding 24 cents and not 32 cents per pound, 10 cents per pound and 10 per cent ad valorem, exceeding 32 cents per pound, 12 cents per pound and 10 per cent ad valorem. When wool is cleaned ready to put upon the cards, three times the amount of the above duties is charged. By far the greater part of the wool which is imported pays only from three to six cents per pound. This tariff is not a sufficient protection for the interests either of our wool growers or manufacturers. The interests of these two classes are now generally conceded to be identical. A protective tariff is necessary that manufactures may not languish; for when they grow dull wool raising is never profitable, and when wool raising is not profitable, experience has shown that there is a poor market for woolen goods—the farmer being cut off from the profits of one of the most considerable branches of his business, and being therefore the less able to pay.

The experience of England amply illustrates this subject. For three centuries prior to 1800, the British Government permitted the free importation of foreign wool into the kingdom. About that time some far sighted statesmen foreseeing that manufactures of wool and cotton would one day be a principal branch of England's industry, took measures to obtain within her own dominions a supply of materials to furnish her own woolen manufactories. A small duty was laid on imported wool, which as the number of sheep in the United Kingdom increased, was gradually raised to twelve and a half cents per pound. In 1810 there were 19,000,000 of sheep in Great Britain, and by the year 1850 they had increased to over 50,000,000. The Government used every exertion to stimulate the production of wool in Australia, British India and other colonies, so that by 1855 the whole crop from all parts amounted to 350,000,000 pounds per annum—quite sufficient to supply all the manufactures of England. In 1863, they had a surplus of 100,000,000 pounds, a large part of which was shipped to this continent. These results were brought about by a policy which, if put in operation, would produce like results in the United States. English manufacturers now say that the protective tariff which they had when they were situated as to their supply of wool just as we are now, proved to be the salvation of the woolen interests of the country. It both saved the manufacturers, and added incalculably to the agricultural wealth of all parts of the kingdom. At the present time English wool growers need no protection on wool any more than our farmers do on grain, for nobody ships clothing to England nor breadstuffs to the United States. If the United States produced a surplus of wool as England does, of course there would be no need for any tariff whatever upon the commodity.

The domestic sources for raw wool are not half adequate for the wants of the people of the United States. The product of 1866 cannot possibly be larger than 90,000,000 pounds. In 1864 we imported not less than 100,000,000 pounds, and it is estimated that when the machinery now building comes into operation, we shall be obliged to depend on foreign nations for at least 150,000,000 pounds a year, as there is but a small stock of foreign wool now in the country. With our wants increasing so rapidly, we ought to double our production of wool within the next five years. We ought to make our country independent of others in this important branch of industry. If we build up a domestic supply of wool, we shall increase our agricultural wealth by an untold amount, and in case of a foreign war, shall be able to avert the calamities which fell upon the operators of England but a short time ago when our civil commotions cut off their supply of cotton, and brought them to the depths of extremest misery.

No State in the Union is more deeply interested in the production of wool, and the promotion of woolen manufactures than Oregon. The wool grown in this State is unexcelled in fineness, and when brought into fair competition with that grown elsewhere in the United States, is classed with the very best. Wool growing will always be one of the most profitable pursuits of the Oregon husbandman, and the day will come when this State will be second to none in the amount of wool produced. Our people are alike interested with those of the other States in fostering a policy which will build up this great interest and open the way for the increase of wealth which it will surely bring.

Gen. Halleck says the time for hanging Jeff Davis has passed. We think so, too, and Andrew Johnson is responsible for the failure.—Yreka Journal.

The proper time for hanging passed about a year ago last April. Since that time, Johnson has changed his mind about the criminality of Jeff Davis' conduct. The man who captured him is in infinitely greater danger of being hung by A. Johnson than is Jeff Davis.

Congress before its adjournment adopted the amendment to the Indian Appropriation Bill, attaching the Indian Bureau to the War Department after January next.

We see that the new tax bill gets after Beriah pretty sharply. It taxes brass 5 per cent. If that don't break down the Herald, it may be safely said to be a permanent institution.

COPPERHEAD RESOLUTIONS.—The following resolutions were adopted by the Copperhead Convention of Polk county on the 31st ult:

Resolved, That we indorse the platform of the Democratic State Convention recently held at Portland.

Resolved, That we are unconditionally opposed to the amendments to the Constitution, recently submitted to the States by Congress.

Resolved, That we are opposed to the negro, Indian and Chinese suffrage bill, in the Territories, recently passed by Congress.

Resolved, That we are opposed to the Freedmen's Bureau and Civil Rights bills, recently passed by Congress.

Resolved, That we endorse the principles enunciated in the call for a Convention at Philadelphia.

Resolved, That we will stand by and aid Andrew Johnson in his efforts to preserve the Constitution and restore the Union as it was, with the rights of all the States unimpaired, against the assaults of the Radicals in Congress.

POLK COUNTY.—In the Polk County Union Convention held July 30th the following resolutions were separately and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That Hon. John A. Frazer the late lamented Senator of Polk county, for his many public and private virtues and for the firm, faithful and patriotic manner in which he has ever discharged his duty to his God, his country and the people who respected and honored him, should be held in grateful memory by his fellow citizens.

Resolved, That we are in favor of the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment, recently submitted by the Congress of the United States to the several State Legislatures for ratification.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO AUGUST 6.

The Tariff Law.

CHICAGO, August 6.—The amendatory tariff law has been published. It contains only those rates of duty heretofore telegraphed, without anything being said about wool, and is chiefly filled with administrative sections on law points. The following is the section which attracts the most attention:

Section 9. In determining the dutiable value of merchandise hereafter imported there shall be added to cost of the actual wholesale price or general market value at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence the same shall have been imported into the United States the cost of transportation, shipment with all expenses included from the place of growth, production or manufacture whether by land or water to the vessel in which shipment is made to the United States the value of the sack, box or covering of any kind in which such goods are contained the commissions at the usual rates but in no case less than two and a half per cent brokerage export duty and all other actual and usual charges for putting up preparing and packing for transportation or shipment and all charges of a general character incurred in the purchase of a general invoice shall be distributed pro rata among all parts of such invoice and every part thereof charged with duties on such value shall be advanced according to its proportion and all wines or other articles paying specific duty by grades shall be graded and pay duty according to the actual duty so determined provided that all additions made to the entered value of merchandise for charges shall be regarded as part of the actual value of such merchandise and if such addition shall exceed by ten per cent the value so declared in the entry in addition to the duties imposed below there shall be levied collected and paid, a duty of twenty per cent. on such value provided, that the duty shall in no case be levied upon an amount less than the invoice or entered value provided, further that nothing herein contained shall apply to long combing or carpet wools costing twelve cents or less per pound unless the charges so added shall carry the cost above twelve cents per pound in which case one cent per pound duty shall be added.

Inquiry into the New Orleans Disturbances.

NEW ORLEANS, August 6.—The military commission appointed to inquire into the late disturbances in the city are still pursuing their investigations. They have already examined a large number of witnesses. The Commission will sit until they have made a thorough investigation of the whole affair. Business is reviving considerably. Cotton 37@38 for middling.

Cholera at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, August 6.—The cholera has assumed an epidemic form. Since August 1st 64 deaths have been reported. Yesterday the number of deaths reached 24. The cases now occurring are not malignant, the weather being cool and unfavorable. The thermometer this morning marked but 64.

Telegrams from Gen. Sheridan—The Public Finances.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Gen Sheridan has telegraphed three dispatches to Gen Grant, only one of which has been published. The other two are said to be worded in quite a different strain, and that he objects to the dispatches telegraphed by the President to Attorney General Herron on the 30th.

The statement of the public finances on the 1st of August show a revenue for the year of $277,500,000 with $147,000,000 in cash in the treasury. The net reduction of the public debt since a year ago is $24,000,000.

Cholera in New York—Financial Matters.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The cholera has not seemingly abated. For the 24 hours to 7 o'clock last evening 25 official cases and nine deaths were reported. Three deaths of previously reported cases had occurred at Governor's Island.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The Post's money article says money continues easy. Gold more firm. Stocks dull, and 5-20's 5/8 of the original issue in demand. The Bank statements show an increase of loans of $190,000, decrease of specie 252,000, increase of circulation $50,000, decrease of deposits, $126,000, decrease of legal tenders $47,000.

Cotton dull and easier at 34½ and 37 cents.

Flour dull—10 and 15 cents lower; grade brands closing heavy at $9 50@11 40.

There were twenty cases and four deaths by cholera in this city, and 8 cases and one death in Brooklyn, reported to-day.

Foreign News.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Advices by the steamer Germania contain paragraphs confirming the news briefly announced by the cable.

A great reform demonstration was held in Hyde Park July 23d. 13,000 police and two companies of Life Guards were called out. Nothing serious occurred.

Austria has accepted the preliminaries of peace submitted by Prussia. Plenipotentiaries had assembled at the Prussian headquarters to negotiate an armistice.

Italy's definite reply was accepted, she had already admitted, in principle, the peace preliminaries proposed by Prussia and approved by France and Austria to recognize the dissolution of the former German bund and to permit the organization of a new confederation from which Austria is to be excluded. Austria agrees to this settlement, north Germany to form a union under Prussia's direction, annexation of the Duchies to Prussia excepting the Danish-Schleswig part, payment by Austria of the war expenses, the maintenance of Austria's integrity excepting Venetia. Prussia intends annexing territory containing 30,000,000 of people. Manteufel insists on the immediate payment of 25,000,000 florins, and threatens to deliver Frankfort up to pillage in the event of non-compliance. The bourse and warehouses were closed. The Frankfort Chamber refuse to pay, and prefer submitting to pillage. She has solicited the intervention of Napoleon and the English Cabinet.

The Paris Patrie says, the terms of the armistice as regards Italy, stipulate for the occupation of Verona by Italian troops.

A telegram from Brunn says that on marching from Brunn the Prussian army discovered in front in every direction pickets of the enemy's cavalry, who retired as the Prussians advanced. The bridges across the Elbe and Mense were restored by the Prussians in twenty four hours. The Mondo brigade which had entrenched itself at Landberg evacuated the town without resistance, and proceeded south. During a few days preceding the occupation of Guding by the Prussians, thirty nine trains heavily freighted with troops passed through that town for the south. The last six trains conveyed soldiers of the Saxon army. The vanguard of the second reserve corps has arrived at Hoff, in Bavaria, by forced marches. They took sixty prisoners.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The Eastern line is up, but on account of the several lightning storms east of Laramie, we are unable to get a report.

Isaac Livingston has commenced suit in the 4th District Court to obtain an injunction against the sale of certain stock in the Blue Lodge Gold and Silver Mining Company for delinquent assessments.

J. W. Walsh, convicted of libel, moved for a new trial through his counsel to-day. The matter was argued at some length before Judge Cowles, and submitted for discussion.

The application of Wilhelmina Passmore for the custody of her children, has been dismissed by consent—a reconciliation between husband and wife having happily been effected.

Judge Dwinelle to-day granted Eliza M. W. England a divorce from her husband Hermann W. England, on the ground of extreme cruelty.

Judge Sawyer granted Jane Shannon a divorce from her husband Edward Shannon on the ground of desertion.

FROM BLACKFOOT.

The Walla Walla Statesman of the 3d furnishes the following:

THE BUSINESS "SITUATION."

Mr E B Whitman arrived this week from Blackfoot and gives us some interesting items from that quarter. He reports that just at the present time the country is in every respect greatly overdone. There is a large surplus of miners and men of almost every trade and profession in the country, and goods and supplies of all kinds are so plentiful as to bar anything like high prices or large profits. Still Mr W pronounces the Blackfoot a good mining country now, and thinks it will be a permanent one. As almost every miner and mechanic on the Pacific coast who could, has gone this season to Blackfoot, so it would seem every trader and packer similarly circumstanced has done, hence the mines and business points by being thus overdone are made to appear much worse than they really are. The prime cause of the stagnation in business is that nearly all the trains arrived in the mines about the same time and their goods were thrown upon the market together. The supplies brought up from St Louis were not so large as were anticipated—many of the boats being loaded principally with machinery.

THE ROUTES TO BLACKFOOT.

Mr Whitman came down by the Mullan road and prefers it in better traveling condition than it has before been since the discovery of the Blackfoot mines—there being no place on it scarcely excepting at the crossing of an occasional mud hole but he could easily gallop his horse over. Several weeks ago a party went over the road this season (Mr W met them at the Missoula) and there has been a considerable amount of work done upon the road, in the way of cleaning out the fallen timber by the way farers and packers. Mr W reiterates what has been so often said before that the opening of this road for freight teams is of the utmost importance to the people this side of the mountains in securing the Blackfoot trade. The work, he says can be done by fifty men in thirty days, and then freight can be transported from Wallula to the mines for ten cents per pound—cheaper than it can possibly be brought from the other side. The Mullan road has this advantage over the Pend Oreille route in being a hundred miles nearer and is said by all the packers who have traveled both routes to be the best road. While in the mines Mr W made the acquaintance of a gentleman who had been sent up by a large firm in San Francisco to prospect in regard to the price at which freight could be landed in the mines from there and whether they could compete with St Louis, he is satisfied that they can sell their goods as cheaply as they can be bought in the latter place. They stand ready to send forward a hundred tons of freight as soon as it is determined that they can compete with the St Louis route. With the Mullan road open according to Mr Whitman's calculation, they could more than compete.

FROM WALLA WALLA.

We clip from the Statesman of August 3d:

CITY WATER WORKS.

Parties having the requisite means have applied to the City Council for the privilege of bringing the water from Mill Creek. They propose to use iron pipes to run the length of Main street with ... and ... other important streets. Fire plugs will be placed at suitable intervals throughout the city, the water for which will be furnished free of charge. The parties making the proposition are prepared to go on with the work immediately and should their offer be accepted by the city expect to introduce the water inside of sixty days.

EXTREME HEAT.

Tuesday last was certainly the hottest day of the season. In the afternoon the thermometer in front of Dr Clemens's Drug store marked 111° in the shade. In this office in a sheltered position and exposed to a continuous draft for the time the thermometer for several hours stood at 100°. In the evening of that day a breeze sprung up which served to cool the atmosphere since which time the weather has been pleasant. At this writing (Friday noon) the thermometer marks 76° with a gentle breeze stirring which serves to render the weather delightful.

SCARCITY OF LABORERS.

The farmers of this valley have experienced great difficulty in obtaining the hands required to harvest their crops. Good hands readily command $3 a day but even at this figure they are scarce. In other seasons returning miners have furnished the extra labor required during harvest time but thus far this year but few of this class have returned and hence the unusual scarcity of hands.

MILITARY.

Gen Sackett, of the Engineer Corps arrived here on Thursday from Boise and left the same day for Fort Vancouver. Gen S is on a tour of inspection of the military roads in the Western Division and will return to the upper country in a few days for the purpose of inspecting the Mullan road.

VALUABLE PROPERTY OF THE CITY.—In company with Superintendent Walker of the river and harbor improvements, a few days since, we made a tour of inspection at those docks where are to be seen the new city dredger, the scows or tanks, and the snag puller To one who is an admirer of massive machinery an inspection of the new dredger will afford much pleasure It is of simple construction but at the same time presents at first sight a most complicated appearance Machines of the pattern of this are now in use in nearly every harbor and river in the United States where dredging is required, and as far as they have given so far as is known, the greatest satisfaction The high reputation which Mr Walker has won for himself in respect to operating this class of machinery, it seems to us will be more than endorsed by our community when he has completed his engagement with us He expects to be able to do even better with the new machine than he at first anticipated Before the close of the current week, probably, the dredger will be forwarded sufficient to allow him to raise steam and test the gearing The snag puller is at present laid up at the wharf of Messrs McCraken, Merrill & Co. This is a very useful machine and one which will be the means of doing nearly as valuable service as the dredger That people can know what it is capable of doing we may state that one tree exhumed when it was at work recently, measured seven feet in diameter, was about three hundred feet long and the roots which were found imbedded in about eight feet of mud measured eighteen feet across Four limbs of the tree measured each four feet in diameter In pulling it out one of the hooks of a pulley made of the very best Ulster iron two and a quarter inches thick was broken and the iron grapplers four by two inches in size, were nearly straightened The amount of steam used on the occasion of this effort was but 45 pounds, and Mr Walker estimates that the weight of the tree was not less than 200 tons He intends putting the snag puller at work again to-morrow and will soon follow with the dredger In addition to the above mentioned machines, the city has a full set of diving apparatus, which has lately arrived from Boston to be used in the same branch of operations This apparatus was tested on Monday, at the solicitation of Wells Fargo & Co, at Vancouver in searching for treasure lost overboard at that place by Messenger Page a few days since. Mr James Dempsey an experienced diver worked in the apparatus very readily and easily assisted by Superintendent Walker and Mr Page Three attempts were made after which Mr Dempsey returned with the money —$313 00, consisting of fifteen $20 pieces $10, $2.50 and a 50 ct. piece which were found scattered over the bottom at a depth of twenty three feet, in a rapid current. He also found a silver watch which was lost some years ago in the same locality which he will retain as a souvenir of the first marine diving done here. The apparatus was shown to us on board the steamer Wilson G. Hunt, and although new to us we could see that it was a magnificent affair The air-pump is a fine piece of mechanism, and the armor helmet, breast plate, and dress all appear to be the very best in use. With these implements and machines in case a pile driver was attached to the snag puller, and a steam tug purchased, our city would be competent to undertake any kind of river and harbor improvements that can be thought of, and no doubt the $15,000 appropriated by Government—we presume in greenbacks—for improving the Willamette and Columbia could be properly expended by the city. It seems ridiculous to refer to this insignificant appropriation, after what the General Government has done to improve Petaluma creek, in California There, an appropriation of $40 000 in coin was expended, for the benefit of a little town not having a tenth part the importance of Portland But we hope that after going to the expense our city has in this very important improvement, the General Government will take some steps to help us out If our claims can be once justly regarded in this respect, then we shall have a hope that we may some day be as fortunate as the City of Stockton, another California town one hundred and twenty-seven miles from the coast where the General Government has established a port of entry and given the people a collector of customs and permission to receive merchandise from foreign ports.

MERCHANDISE IN MONTANA.—A private letter from Helena to a partner in business in this city, gives some particulars which may be of benefit to the mercantile community The writer states that there is no demand for many articles, such as cross-cut and whip-saws brandy, whisky or candles He had not sold any mining tools to advantage. Clothing was selling 20 per cent above Portland prices The demand for gum boots was limited Shovels were retailing at $3 each Tobacco and groceries were reported almost as low as Portland prices, and case goods were sold for less than they could be laid down from Portland He says he shall hold on for a short time as it is generally supposed that goods will advance after the "St. Louis scare is over." Dealers were not making anything on goods brought from St. Louis. There was a large number of traders at Fort Benton who were badly disappointed, and teams that had gone to the Missouri river for freight were disappointed, and were compelled to load up at 3½ cents from Benton to Helena The writer says he thought of going to Benton to purchase believing that the market was a good one, on account of the panic for jobbing, as goods could be bought at very low rates, and anything would sell at certain prices He speaks well of the country, and although his mercantile transactions have not been the most fortunate, he having had to pay exorbitantly for freights, believes that he will yet "get even, and a little more than even, before the close of the fall trade

THE HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY AND THE UNITED STATES.—For some time past, at the office of Commissioner Wilcox, in this city, investigations have been conducted on the part of the United States by Hon W C Johnson and on the part of the Hudson's Bay Company and the Puget Sound Agricultural Company, by Frank Clark, Esq., regarding the claims of these companies against the United States. A synopsis of Judge Thornton's testimony, showing why Dr McLaughlin withdrew from the Hudson Bay Company, was published in the OREGONIAN yesterday Several witnesses on the part of the United States have given testimony in the case, and as it is a matter of great magnitude and importance, several persons who knew of facts calculated to thwart the efforts of the companies, in their attempts to gather their golden fleece from the Treasury of the United States, have rendered such aid as Mr Johnson could desire, and very much more evidence was offered than was really necessary to prove the immensity of the proposed swindle The opposing party, witnesses and all, seemed to be very intimately and personally interested in the results of the investigation, and have done their utmost to make the pretended value of the property in question appear plausible The investigation closed last evening, and the manuscript will be forwarded to Washington city for publication.

SAILED.—The steamship Orizaba, Capt Wm. Metzger, commanding, sailed from this port for San Francisco at 9½ o'clock last evening Her treasure was shipped by parties as follows

Wells, Fargo & Co	$101,000
Ladd & Tilton	40,000
Goldsmith Bros	11,000
Other parties	30,000
Total	$278 000

The freight shipments were as follows 4 trunks, 5 bales, 7 cases, and barrels of manufactured goods, 5 packages broom handles, 77 bales wool, 80 half barrels dried apples 4 half barrels dried peaches 25 barrels salmon 12 half barrels do, 6 empty gin pipes, 12 rolls of leather, 8 boxes quartz, 7 boxes eggs, 5 coops chickens, 135 hides, 7 bundles skins, 5 barrels pork 4 gunnies bacon; 2 gunnies venison, 2 bundles castings.

CIVIL RIGHTS.—Recently a nigger was sent up for thirty days for blackening the walls of the OREGONIAN building, under advice received from a Copperhead He found that "civil rights" kicked backward, as well as to the front. Later still a darkey on Front street attempted to take up all the side-walk in front of his boot-blacking stands, and learned to his sorrow that "white trash" wouldn't "stand dat kind ob proceedin'." Yesterday another gentleman of the so called class stubbornly refused to take off his hat at a restaurant table, in this city, which resulted in a muss with the waiter, which will be inquired into before Justice Hoffman to-day No person has any objection to the colored population enjoying all the rights delegated to them by society and the laws, but they must not so far forget themselves as to neglect their own self respect, and consequently the respect of others, in assuming those rights.

QUICK WORK.—On Saturday last, at 2 o'clock P. M., Messrs McCraken, Merrill & Co., of this city, received an order for 4,000 pounds of pilot bread to be used by the troops leaving Fort Vancouver on Monday morning The order was taken to the New York Bakery of F U Horning, and in sixteen hours work was filled The flour was taken to the bakery in the time the bread made, and boxed for shipment. This may be considered quick work for a "slow country."

PASSENGERS BY THE ORIZABA.—Among the passengers by the Orizaba leaving last evening we noticed Dr J G Glenn and family who are en route for the "old home" in New England, on a visit of a year Dr Huffman goes to San Francisco for a month's recreation, and the popular and efficient warden of the Penitentiary Mr J C Gardner, leaves us, possibly for all time Rev B. C Lippincott and family also, were passengers for the Atlantic States We wish them all a safe and pleasant journey

COMING STEAMERS.—We have been unable to get satisfactory intelligence regarding the coming steamers from San Francisco, but the supposition, which events seem to sustain is, that both the Montana and one of the California, Oregon and Mexico line left for Portland on Saturday last If this is so they will be due to-day

TROTTING PARK.—A half mile track is to be constructed near the White House for trotting purposes Mr J H Perry is preparing to do the work which is sufficient guarantee that it will be a first class track Crawford's largest sized stump elevators will be used to take the "old inhabitants" of the soil from their resting places, wherever they may be met with as obstructions

DALLES FIREMEN'S ELECTION.—The election for Chief Engineer and First Assistant of the Dalles Fire Department on Monday last resulted in the re-election of A W Buchanan as Chief by six majority and Mr George A Liebe Assistant, without opposition.

RETURNED.—We are pleased to meet again on the streets of the city with Dr Heath, who has returned from Montana The Doctor says Montana will do, but for him he prefers Web Foot This is most generally true in all cases. Certainly there is no better country than Oregon

THE TILLAMOOK SURVEY.—We learn from Capt. Flavel, who arrived in the city last evening that Mr Kincheloe and party detailed to survey the entrance to Tillamook left Astoria yesterday morning, well fitted for the expedition

TREASURE.—In addition to the regular treasure shipments last evening, we have added $36,000 taken by two gentlemen, in coin, from sales of Montana dust.

QUARTZ EXPORT.—The steamship Orizaba last evening took away eight packages of quartz rock from the ledges near Vancouver, to be tested by parties in San Francisco.

TRANSFERRED.—The agency for Grover & Baker's sewing machines in this city has been transferred to Mr Wm. Currier, in Arrigoni's Hotel block, Front street.

RETURNING.—Among the passengers leaving New York for San Francisco on the 1st of August, we notice the names of Mr. S. G. Reed and wife.

STATE ITEMS

The treaties made last year with the Klamaths and Snakes have been ratified

A camp-meeting of Southern Methodists is to be held on Long Tom, commencing September 5th

Wm Hoffman of Jacksonville, has been appointed a Notary Public

We learn, says the Sentinel that the crops of grain on Applegate are extensive, and field hands scarce there is a probability of much grain remaining uncut

The Occidental Mill company will rest their mill in the Davenport ledge [illegible] instead of on the Swinden as at first intended

We yesterday met Capt Palmer late of the Oregon Infantry, who was on his way to Santa Clara valley California, whither he thinks of emigrating He went by the Orizaba last evening

Salem with a population of two thousand or there abouts has eleven physicians—six regular and five irregular. We understand that Monroe the gravestone cutter is doing well

Samuel Wells of Benton county, met with a serious accident on the 6th fracturing the left thigh the bone of which was previously much diseased Amputation was found necessary which was performed by Drs Lee and Sharples.

Messrs Kellogg and Gillespie of Whidby's Island have recently purchased at Jacksonville a horse colt and several fillies from Mr Myer the stock of "Coberg" and "Capt Sligart" The colt at the age of one year weighed over nine hundred pounds

Buffman & Co. on Canyon Creek have just finished an arastra Their vein is still very rich Some say they have a ton of gold in sight It is certainly one of the richest veins ever discovered in this section of country See Sentinel

There is quite an excitement in Josephine county, says the Sentinel about a new quartz vein, recently discovered on Rogue River, about two and a half or three miles below Vannoy's Ferry It is situated above what is known as Evan's Diggings where he mined some four years ago On the surface the ledge appeared to be divided into two seams, and each is nearly four feet wide

Garrett Maupin, who was killed near Oakland last Saturday by the upsetting of a wagon loaded with wool was walking beside the wagon when the accident occurred. A bale of wool weighing six hundred pounds fell on him Maupin was intoxicated and another man was driving He formerly lived at Eugene City

The Review, not long since, published a communication from Yaquina Bay charging Ben. Simpson with having made an attempt to intimidate David Newsom when about to vote on election day Mr Newsom has a card in the last Statesman denying the statement and saying that no intimidation was attempted by anybody to his knowledge, and that no illegal vote was cast by any Union man at the Yaquina polls

From Mr Garden just down from the Santiam we learn, says the Statesman that the prospects continue flattering Fifty tons of rock from the Santiam Company's tunnels had been put through and he was confident the yield would not fall short of twenty dollars per ton. The Santiam is bound to come out strong yet The perfect confidence of such experienced miners as Mr Garden is not to be lightly passed over

The Statesman says: Last week Mr Comegys showed us the first effort in the way of procuring pig lead from the Santiam mines, From about seven pounds of ore, they extracted between five and six pounds of pure lead, but by want of proper implements the most of the lead was wasted What has been done is ample proof of the practicability of smelting lead from the ore of the "Sherman lead" The lead as stated before contains a handsome percentage of silver, and altogether we regard the mine as a valuable one.

FROM IDAHO

The Idaho Statesman (Boise City) of the 31st of July contains the following

THE IDAHO CITY MINING REGION

A letter from Idaho City, of the 27th, says I had the pleasure a few days ago of mounting a thorough bred steed, headed for the mines belonging to the Golden Reef Mining Company, J. A Middleton Agent, and E Motz, Superintendent located on the divide between Elk and Grimes creeks, and about seven miles distant from Idaho City The mill is located on Deer Creek a tributary of Elk. The buildings, mill, dwelling office and shop are all substantially built Ten stamps are constantly kept running on ore from the Buffalo ledge, which yields satisfactorily One team with two yoke of oxen is constantly employed in hauling ore and wood for winter use Deer creek supplies an abundance of water during all seasons of the year I had the pleasure of a general reconnoissance with W. S Middleton, who is the chief accountant in the office at the mill He informed me that the ore from the various mines yielded from $30 to $13 per ton. The machinery is got up in the most workmanlike manner with an engine of twenty horse power In company with Mr J. A. Middleton I visited several of the mines and found them corresponding with the following figures

The "Buffalo Ledge" Tunnel, on the east side of the divide 125 feet to a shaft of 80 feet in depth from thence a continuance From the shaft of 90 feet on the west side of the divide, a tunnel of 125 feet is run on the ledge Another tunnel is commenced which will when completed, tap the ledge at a depth of 200 feet below the surface, Ledge from 3 to 4½ feet wide

The "Stevens Ledge" is over 30 inches wide and has a shaft on it of over 135 feet, with two drifts of 40 to 60 feet wide

The "Golden Reef No. 1" is 30 inches wide has a shaft on it of 30 feet, with bottom drift on the same distance The next opening will be over 60 feet from the surface

The "Golden Reef No. 2" is a ledge of 00 feet in width of a talcose nature—the pay rock lying in deposits of a spider webb nature. The tunnel on this ledge is 170 feet in length, drifted at right angles 60 feet to a ledge, and continued along foot wall 40 feet, and along the hanging wall 30 feet.

The "Golden Reef No 3" is 4 feet wide shaft 30 feet

The "Lucky Bill" is a new ledge, and has a shaft of 30 feet on it; One ton of the rock has been crushed which yielded $34. The ores from the various ledges have yielded as follows Buffalo, $30 per ton, Stevens, $35 Golden Reef, $42

The above mines are beyond a doubt a success Everything required to promote the work and crown the efforts of their enterprising agent with success is at hand A good road connecting with the stage road between Idaho and Centerville, and complete roads leading from the mill to the various mines Wood in abundance of the best quality. Water the whole year round without expense. Mr. Motz informed me that they have seventeen men at work, but intend to increase the number to thirty He estimates that the expense of extracting delivering and [illegible] the ore is only $10 per ton, notwithstanding the high price of labor and subsistence. The distance from the mill to the several mines is three-quarters of a mile.

Other mills are in operation in this vicinity The Illinois and [illegible] ledges are constantly worked with success. Others are being prepared to receive machinery which is on the road from the east.

The creek claims are in full blast, and will continue so until interfered with by Jack Frost

PLACERVILLE HILL DIGGINGS.

We learn by Mr Thos. Hart, just down from Placerville that deep diggings have been struck near there, by tunneling the hill between Boyle's gulch and Ophir creek near the Placerville and Idaho City stage road. Tunnels have been run from each side of the hill and fine pay gravel is found, from four to six feet deep, at a depth of sixty feet from the surface, that pays from fifty cents to one dollar and fifty cents to the pan The distance between the pay dirt, as found on each side of the hill is about one thousand feet, and it is supposed to be the width of the gravel Mr. Hart has been in the tunnel at each end and tested the richness of the pay dirt, or gravel, and compares it to the rich diggings at China Corral, California, only that the gravel here is deeper Two other tunnels have been run into the same hill, higher up and struck the same kind of pay dirt. This gives great encouragement to the Placerville camp, and the miners have already begun to tunnel California Hill. The excitement for hill diggings is already extending over the basin They are already forming companies in Idaho City to tunnel the hills in that locality Should these kind of diggings prove extensive through the hills of Boise basin, it will double the prospects of the placer mines in that county

The Rocky Mountain News, complaining of the scarcity of female help in Colorado, wants to know if there is not, somewhere, a Mercer who can assist them No, there never was but one Mercer and he has So(a)ttled himself down into a contented, happy Benedick.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
READ AND REFLECT.
Make sure of HEALTH But how? you ask;
We answer, in an easy task,
Give gillen the STOMACH and sustain
The NERVES, the servants of the brain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate from day to day
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the INNER MAN,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
How you inquire, "can this be done?
It is Victory or Disease be won?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS," we reply,
IS HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTION—TRY!
As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution and prolonging life no medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
Against the vapors that prepare
That fever haunt the heavy air
Drink not unmixed the water found
In prairies, woods or marshy ground.
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature you must assist—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries
Medicine a grand purpose and intent
In threatened evil to prevent
And if you be relieved or spared
From ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for think
They are the SUREST ANTIDOTE
To set at defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded workrooms and factories and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be forearmed with
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
Dyspepsia's pangs that rack and grind
The body and depress the mind
Agues that tie you go and come,
Make life a constant martyrdom,
Colics and dysenteric pains,
[illegible] which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
[illegible] by drastic pills;
Dread diarrhoea that can not be
Cured by [illegible] mercury

That brings Death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration mental [illegible]
[illegible] of madness, the tomb;
For these—though mineral poisons fail—
Means of Relief at least [illegible]
HOSTETTER'S BITTERS—medicine sure,
Not to prevent alone but cure.
In dyspepsia, fever and ague bilious complaints constitutional nervous debility, constipation, sea-sickness, spasms, and in all complaints of Man or Woman, proceeding from causal or inherent weakness of the body, the one great remedy and restorative is
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
To wanderers on sea or land,
From Polar sh to Tropic strand;
To households lone in regions new,
And dwellers in great cities too
To soldiers in camp fort and field,
Who need [illegible] disease a shield,
To miners, California bound,
And tillers of wet marshy ground
To feeble wives of fragile mould,

To all the strengthless weak and pale,
Who droop yet know not what they ail,
Hostetter's Bitters we present

The Reckoner

A plodding reckoner with thought intent,
Mindful of gains o'er his cyphers bent
Ever his hand the inkstand sought;
He solved in figures the knottiest thought,
Thus toiling and reckoning day by day
Already his hair was changing to grey
And silently whispered the man of bone
Thy [illegible] must be shown.
Then went the reckoner to view the fields
And feast on the bounty that Nature yields
Flowers were blooming fragrant and bright
But the cyphers confusing dimmed his sight
Birds were piping their careless trill
But loudly echoed the scratching quill
Clouds were decked with golden rays
He saw only visions of inky ways
'Twas then he cast a penitent look
At desk, and counter and [illegible] book,
O mournful the day when he penned each page,
And reckoned glad youth into desolate age

From All the Year Round

Bet's Match-Making

The only time I ever tried match making in my life was when I was seventeen and I then so burnt my fingers over the business that I took care never to meddle with it again. I was living at the time with my stepmother on her farm near Ballymena. My father was dead, and my step mother did not like me She had me for a time with a milliner in the town, but finding it expensive supporting me apart from her, had taken me away again She was thinking of a second marriage though I did not know it at the time. But this I did know—that she had written to some distant friends of my father in America who had unwillingly consented to take me off her hands

I don't think it would have been half as hard for me to have made up my mind to die, for I was a shy little thing, without a bit of courage to deal with strangers, and my heart was fit to burst at the thought of leaving the very few friends whom I had to love and my own little corner of the world, where the trees and the roads knew me But I felt it would have to be done, and I lay awake all night after the letter arrived, trying to think how I should ever be brave enough to say good bye to my dear friend Gracie Byrne, and to Gracie's lover, Donnell M'Donnell.

Gracie was the cleverest of all Miss Doran's apprentices She was an orphan without a friend to look after her, and she was the loveliest girl in the country People said she was proud and vain but I could never think she was either She and I loved one another dearly, though I cannot think what attracted her to poor little plain me. She had plenty of admirers; and she queened it finely amongst them but the only one to whom I would have given her with all my heart was Donnell M'Donnell And oh dear! he was the very one whom she would not look at Donnell and I were great friends, and I had promised to do all I could to help him with Gracie. He was young and strong, and as bonny a man as could be seen He had a fine farm, all his own, some three miles across the country from my stepmother's place If Gracie would but marry him, she would live like a lady, and drive into Ballymena on her own jaunting car. But she was always saying she would go away to London, and be a great "West end" milliner. This terrified me badly, seeing that London is such a wicked place.

My stepmother was always crying out that Gracie would come to a sorrowful end, which made me wild, and as I lay awake that [illegible] night I thought a great deal about what [illegible] happen to her if she went away to London herself and she so handsome and not having a friend at all And I wished with all my strength that she would marry Donnell M'Donnell before I went away to America, which would ease my mind about him For I felt the greatest pity in the world for kind, big Donnell's disappointment.

My stepmother provoked at my sad face next day, and called me ungrateful. Yet when I cried bitterly she got a little kinder, and in the evening allowed me to go into Ballymena to see my friend Grace. So towards sundown when the snow was getting red upon the fences, I wrapped my shawl about me and set off for the town, crying loudly to ease my heart, all along the lonely road, where there was no one to hear me but the robins. The brown trees against the dusky red sky, the white swelling lines of the fields, the dark chimneys of the town on before me, were all blent in a dismal maze, when who should leap over a stile and stand beside me, but Grace's great lover, Donnell. I told him my eyes were only watering with the cold, and he turned and walked alongside of me for a good way, while we talked of Grace, of course He was very angry with her, and said she was playing fast and loose with him, and making him the sport of the town and country. I took Grace's part, and so we went on, till we came to the last white gate on the road and began to meet the town-people. Then I told him I was going away, and he looked so vexed that I nearly cried again. I felt so glad to see him sorry.

"Well, little Bet," said he, "We must give you a good dance over in you big farm-house of yours before you go And in the meantime "

"I'll see to your business, Donnell," said I, smiling, "Never fear but I'll do your business to the last "

Then he shook my two hands till he nearly squeezed them into jelly, and left me [illegible]

When I went into Miss Doran's, it was past the work hour, and the girls were putting on their bonnets to go away, Grace was only sitting close by a candle, putting flowers on a ball dress for one of the country ladies. She having the nicest taste had always the honor of giving the finishing touch to the most particular work She looked very tired, but oh, so handsome, with her pale cheek against the yellow light, and her dark head leaning over a mass of white and rose color tulle

"A bud here," said she, "and a spray there, and then I have done You'll come home with me and sleep That cross stepmother of yours won't see you again to-night."

"Don't talk that way, Grace," said I, "but I came intending to stay" And the work being finished we went home to our lodgings.

A lovely bunch of flowers was lying on her table, and she laughed, and blushed, and looked beautiful when she saw it.

"Who is that from, Grace?" said I, "Donnell?"

"No, indeed " said she, tossing her head. But I was sure that was a fib, for she looked as happy as possible, lying resting herself in her arm-chair beside the fire, while I set out the tea-things She looked so glad, and the shabby room looking so snug and our little tea-drinking being so cozy, I could not bear to tell her the bad news now, and began to see about Donnell's business.

"Grace," said I, "I wish you would marry Donnell soon."

"Soon!" said she, opening her eyes, and looking at me angrily "I will never marry him "

"But you well know, Gracie," said I, getting hot about it, "that you ought to marry him He says—that is, I know—you have made him the laughing stock of the country and "

"Very fine? cried she And so he has been complaining to you, has he?"

"I did not say that," said I; "but, oh, Gracie, I know you like some one I saw you smiling over a letter the other day, just the way you are smiling now "

"And what if I do?" said she, laughing and tossing her head, "that does not prove that it must be Donnell "

"There is no one else as good," said I eagerly "It could not be any one else."

"'Pon my word " said she staring at me, "I think you had better go and marry him yourself "

"I? oh, Gracie!" said I, starting up and sitting down again, and beginning to cry, "I wanted to tell you that I am going to America "

You may be sure we talked no more about Donnell that night.

Donnell did not fail to keep his word about giving me a feast before I left the country He invited three pipers to play and half the country side to dance Gracie and I met at the cross roads, and walked over to the farm together, she bringing a troop of beaux with her from the town

The farm is a dear old place, with orchard trees growing up around the house, and it looked so homely that night Donnell's mother met us at the door, and unpinned our shawls in her own room Gracie looked beautiful in a pretty new dress and bright ribbons. Donnell's mother stroked my hair with her hand, and stuck a bit of holly in the front of the black frock She kept me with her, after Gracie had gone down stairs, holding my hand, and asked me about going to America And the place felt so soft and warm and she was so kind and motherly, after what I had been accustomed to at home, that my heart got so sore I could scarcely bear it.

We had great tea drinking in the parlor, and then we went out to the kitchen, and the pipers fell to work, and Gracie was as amiable as possible to Donnell But just in the middle of our dancing the latch of the back door was lifted and Squire Hannan walked in in his top boots

"I want to speak to you on business, M'Donnell," he said, "but I will not disturb you now "

"Will you do us the honor of joining us, sir?" said Donnell Squire Hannan needed no second invitation He soon made his bow before Gracie, and Donnell saw no more of her smiles that night. She danced with the Squire till it was time to go home, and then, after she had set out for town escorted by him and her other beaux, Donnell's mother kissed me, and Donnell drew my arm through his and walked with me across the snowy fields to my stepmother's house He was abusing Gracie all the way, and I was, as usual, taking her part

He came to see me one day soon after, and brought me a basket of lovely winter pears He leaned against the wall and watched me making butter He was disgusted with Gracie he said she was a flirt and he did not care a pin about her, only he would not be made a fool of She had refused to let him walk with her the next Sunday to the consecration of the church and if he did not get some token that she had changed her mind between that time and this, he would never, he swore look her way again, and marry some one else for spite.

"Oh no, Donnell said I, promise me you won't do that " For I was sure that Gracie liked him all the while

"But I will " said he smiling, "at least if other people will have me

"Oh don't!" said I, but he would not promise me

"It's my mind " said my step-mother after he had gone "that you lad's actions are more like a lover of yours than hers Why don't you catch him, and then you needn't go to America?"

"Mother!" I cried and felt the room spinning round with me, till I caught and held on by the door

Well, well " she said "you needn't look so mad Many a girl'd be glad of him "

I thought a great deal about how he had sworn that he would marry some one else if he did not hear from Gracie before Sunday "I'm sure she loved him, I thought she could not help it, she cannot help it She must have seen even how mean Squire Hannan looked beside him the other night And it would be a most dreadful thing if she was married to some one else she did not care about, and if she went off to London, with a broken heart, to a "West-end" milliner I thought about it, and thought about it There was no use going to Gracie for she would only laugh and mock at me All at once a bright idea came in my head

I was afraid to think of what I was going to do, but that night when my step-mother had gone to bed, leaving me to finish spinning some wool I got out a sheet of paper and a little note of Gracie's which I had in my work box, and began to imitate Gracie's handwriting I had not much trouble, for we wrote nearly alike, and afterwards I composed a little letter

"Dear Mr Donnell," it said, "I have changed my mind, and will be very glad if you will join me on the road to the consecration on Sunday.

"Yours, sincerely,
GRACE BYRNE "

"What harm can it do to send it?" thought I, trembling all the while I folded it up and put it in an envelope directed to Mr Donnell, The Buckey Farm "And it may do such a great deal of good In the first place, It will prevent his marrying for spite before Sunday, and then she will be so glad to see him coming in spite of her crossness, that she will be quite kind to him He is always so stiff and proud when she treats him badly, that I am sure it makes her worse She will never find out that he got a letter—not, at least, till they are quite good friends—married, perhaps—and—then they will both thank me "

So the next evening, about dusk, I slipped quietly into the town and posted my letter I was dreadfully afraid of meeting Donnell or Gracie but I saw no one I know I dropped the note in the letter-box and rushed off towards home at full speed. I ran nearly all the way, the snowy roads were all pery in the evening frost, and near our house I fell and hurt my foot, A neighbor found me leaning against a stile and brought me home. I was to have sailed for America the very next week, but now I was laid up with a sprained ankle and my departure was put off.

On Sunday evening a neighbor woman who had been at the consecration came in to tell us the news This one had been there of course and that one had been there for a wonder, Gracie Byrne had been there in a fine new bonnet (the girl was going to the mischief with dress) and Squire Hannan had been there, and given her the flower out of his button hole

"And Donnell M'Donnell was with her, of course?" said I.

"A, deed you may swear it," said the woman "That'll be a match before long He walked home with her from town, and her smilin' at him like the first of June!"

"They'll be married before I go away," said I to myself, and I leaned back in my corner, for the pain of my foot sickened me

Donnell's mother brought me a custard and some apples the next day

"Donnell's gone to the Glens, my dear," said she, "or he would ha' been over this mornin' to see you. He went before we heard of your foot, and he won't be home for a week."

"What's he doing there?" asked my stepmother

"He has land there, you know," said Donnell's mother, and he goes whiles to settle his affairs with them that has charge of it I don't know rightly what he's gone about now. Something has went agin him lately, for he's not like himself that few days back. He said somethin' about goin' to be married when he came home, but if he is, it's not after his heart, for I never saw a bridegroom so glum on the head of it. But, dear, I thought it was you he liked "

"So he does, Mrs M'Donnell," said I, "But not that way—not for his wife "

"Well, well, my dear!" said Donnell's mother, wiping her eyes.

Everybody was coming to see me now, on account of my foot Gracie came the next day or so, and surely I was amazed at the glory of her dress! My stepmother, who did not like her, left us alone together, and Gracie's news came out. She was going to be married on next Thursday

"I know that," said I.

"How did you know it?" said she.

"Donnell's mother told me "

"Donnell's mother! Nothing but Donnell and Donnell's mother with you forever? How should she know."

"Oh, Gracie, his own "

"Why," she burst in, "you don't imagine he is the man? Why, it's Squire Hannon! Only think Bet, of your Gracie being the Squire's lady ?"

I was quite confounded. "Oh, oh, Gracie!" I stammered.

"Well," said she sulking, "are you not glad?"

"Oh, yes," I said, "very, on your own account, but what will become o' Donnell?"

"Donnell again Now listen to me, Bet. I know when a man likes me, and when he doesn't like me, just as well as any girl, and I've seen, this many a day, that Donnell didn't care a pin about me Not he He only wanted me to marry him that the people might not say I jilted him I told him that, the other day, when he asked me to have him. 'No matter what I want you for,' said he, 'I want you' 'Thank you,' said I. And then what had he the impudence to say! If I changed my mind before Sunday, I was to send him word, that he might come to the consecration with me Then he would set off for the Glens on Monday, and settle some business there, and be home for our wedding in a week.

I screamed out, seeing what I had done

"The poor foot!" said Gracie, thinking I was in pain "Is it bad?"

"Never mind it," said I "And what did you say?"

"I said," Grace went on, "that whatever morning he got up and saw black snow on the ground, that day he might look for a message from me. And yet he had the meanness to walk with me on Sunday, after all. And the best fun of it is, that they say he's gone to the Glens "

"Oh oh!" said I beginning to groan again and pretending that it was all my foot After that, Gracie talked about herself and Squire Hannan until she went away And somehow I never had felt so sorry to part with her before She seemed not to be my own Gracie any longer

And now I was nearly out of my senses, thinking what mischief might come of my meddling I was sure that Donnell and Squire Hannan would fight and kill one another and all on account of me I thought I would give all I had in the world to see Donnell before any one else had told him the news, and confess to him what I done On Tuesday, about midday, a country man from the Glens came in to light his pipe and he said he passed M'Donnell, of Buckey Farm, on the way.

"An' I think things must be goin badly with him," said he, "for he has look on his face as black as the potato blight "

"Somebody has told him maybe!" said I to myself And I put on a shawl and borrowing a stick from an old neighbor, I hobbled off secretly up the road towards the Glens I soon got tired and dreadfully cold as I could not walk fast and sat down on a bit of an old gray stone to watch for Donnell coming past. At last he came thundering along and although it was getting dusk, I could see that he had his head down and looked dreadfully dark and unhappy

"Donnell," said I, calling out to him

"Who's that?" he said "Why, its never little Bet!"

"But indeed it is," said I "Oh Donnell did you hear? I came to tell you Gracie was married this morning to Squire Hannan "

"Whew!" he gave a long whistle. "The jilt!" said he and he snapped his fingers But his whole face brightened up

"She's not so much of a jilt as you think Donnell " said I, "for—oh how can I ever tell you—it was I who wrote you the note you got last week, and she had nothing to do with it I did it for the best, I did indeed, for I thought that Gracie liked you, I did, indeed And, oh, Donnell, sure you won't go and kill Squire Hannan ?"

"Won't," said he, looking awful savage. "I cut a great black thorn this morning in the Glens for no other purpose than to beat out his brains "

I gave a great scream and dropping my stick fell along with it but Donnell picked me up and set me safe on his horse behind him

"Now " said he "I'll tell you what it is little Bet I'll make a bargain You'll marry me and I won't touch Squire Hannan "

"I marry you?" cried I "after—after Gracie Indeed I will not Donnell McDonnell!"

"I've behaved very badly " said he "but I'm very sorry It's a long since I liked you better than Gracie, but the devil of pride was in me and the people were saying she would jilt me When I got your bit of a note I felt as if I was goin to be hung God bless Squire Hannan! Now will you marry me little Bet?"

"No " said I And with that he whipped up his horse, and dashed off with me at the speed of a hunt

"Stop stop!" cried I "Where are you taking me to? You've passed the turn of our road

But I might as well shout to the wind On we dashed up hill and down hill, through fields and through bogs, with the hedges running along by our side and the moon whizzing past us among the bare branches of the trees He never drew rein till the horse stopped at the dear Buckey Farm house door when he carried me straight into the bright warm kitchen, where his mother had the tea set out, and cakes smoking, ready for his return

"Talk her into reason," said he, putting me into his mother's arms "I want her to marry me, and she says she won't "

I did my best to keep sulky for a proper length of time, but it was the hardest thing I ever tried to do and they both so kind, and the place so bright and cozy, and I being so happy on the sly all the time! So the end of it was that I did not go to America, and that I am Mrs McDonnell of the Buckey Farm But I never tried match making again
